About Noel

If you need an experienced mine site/production manager, someone to help you set up your latest mining project or review and fix any issues that may be occurring on your currently operating mine site, then Noel is your man. The two keywords that best describe Noel are 'practical' and 'troubleshooter'. Noel's main career focus has been production orientated, having worked in managerial roles for the better part of his career. He thrives on getting operations running to their full potential and achieving best value for the client and has setup no less than four mine sites in his career. Noel has understanding of small to major operations alike as well as experience in a multitude of varied deposits mined by open cut. Noel also has extensive experience in site construction and has a "getting the job done right the first time" attitude for any task that he performs.

If you'd like to have Noel help you with your project, please contact him as per the details displayed below.
